artist's biography.

SAHRA:

With a truly magnetic and hypnotic voice, Australia's Sahra delivers not only the meaning of the lyrics but the true essence of the songs in her debut album, "Girl Parts". It is an intensely personal and emotive album where listeners experience an array of emotions in the lyrics: laughter as well as sorrow and tears.

From a small country town north of Sydney, Australia, Sahra was introduced to the world of entertainment at an early age. As a child, Sahra was convinced that performing would be her life, which ultimately, led to opportunities as an actress on TV.

Her musical talent and angelic voice has seen her singing alongside high-profile Australian acts such as Vanessa Amorossi and Richard Clapton as well as touring with bands ceaselessly throughout Australia performing as a singer.

Since then, Sahra has blossomed into a striking pop-based singer-songwriter who, after meeting Damien Reilly, Director of Blue Pie Productions, was invited to record their first song, "Baby" with respected producer Phil Munro. For the debut album, Sahra and Damien set out to write a solid body of songs that would be timeless and that would be true to Sahra's vocal ability.

The first single released received critical acclaim, a remake of the 1978 R&B number one hit "Boogie Oogie Oogie" by "A Taste of Honey". It has since sky rocketed into the global scene, 577 million people was exposed to Sahra's rendition as it was licensed to the opening segment of the Iceland Fashion Week.
